Dulles Rejects Neutrality Role For Germany

Discloses View
Has Been Approved
By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles with President Eisenhower's approval has rejected as unrealistic a role of neutrality for Germany as proposed by Russia, it was revealed today.

Dulles disclosed that he relayed this view last Friday to German Ambassador Heinz L. Krekler. The German envoy had asked Dulles the night before whether Mr. Eisenhower's news conference statements last week meant that the United States favored a role of neutrality for Germany.

Dulles said at a news conference today that Mr. Eisenhower had authorized him to tell the West Germans that the President's statements should not be interpreted as implying U. S. agreement to a neutral role for Western Germany or for all Germany if and when it is unified.

State Department sources said meanwhile that West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer may come to Washington if he decides to visit the United States next month.

Favor Free Satellites
If he comes, these sources said, it is considered likely he will confer with President Eisenhower.

Harvard University has invited Adenauer to accept an honorary degree June 16, but no official acceptance has yet been received.

Dulles said it is unrealistic to believe that Germany, a country of 70 million persons could play the role of neutral as proposed by Russia.

Mr. Eisenhower at his news conference last week said "there seems to be developing the thought that there might be built up a series of neutralized states from north to south through Europe." This gave rise to speculation that the President would include Germany in such a plan.

Dulles was asked whether United States would favor a string of independent states to the east of Germany—from the Baltic to the Adriatic. He replied that anything which would contribute to the independence of the satellites would be favorably received by the United States.

AFROTC Chief at SIU Addresses Rotarians, Ladies

Col. Alexander MacMillan, head of the Air Force ROTC program at SIU, was the speaker at the Rotary club's ladies' night dinner last evening at the Masonic temple. He was introduced by Trafton Dennis.

Col. MacMillan, who once served as adjutant of a jet base in England, spoke on the "Impact of the Air Age," dividing his talk into the boom and the boon of the age.

After discussing a few of the shortcomings of the air age, he was also able to direct the thinking of his listeners to the better things that the age has brought to all. He pointed out that countries and people are united through the air age and that tremendous scientific progress is made through increased research because of the times.

The speaker also mentioned something about the program of the ROTC at Southern and its endeavors in training airmen, not only for service but in a good citizenship sense as well.

Mrs. MacMillan was a guest. Other guests were Miss Virginia Blackard and Mrs. Sam Smith.

Two Resign From City Schools Faculty

The resignations of Mrs. Robert Schmatz and Mrs. Hallett Miller from the Harrisburg City school faculty were presented to the school board Monday evening by Russell Malan, superintendent.

Mrs. Schmatz has been in charge of the Bankston school. Her husband is an interne in the Harrisburg schools while working on his Master's degree in education from SIU. He will go to the faculty of Brockport college, near Rochester, N. Y., in the fall.

Mrs. Miller plans will be announced at a later date.

Senate Upholds Postal Pay Increase Veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today upheld President Eisenhower's veto of a bill which would have given 500,000 postal workers an average 8.8 per cent pay increase.

The vote closely followed party lines with most Republicans voting to sustain the veto and most Democrats voting to override. A two-thirds majority was necessary to override. The vote was 54 to 39.

The Senate action killed the bill and made a House veto unnecessary. New legislation must be pushed through Congress now if the postal workers are to receive a raise.

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) announced he was ready to introduce a new bill, retroactive to March 1, in line with administration proposals.

The Carlson bill would raise postal pay an average of about 8 per cent.

Other congressional news:
Uniforms: Leon M. Levy, Brooklyn garment maker, told senators his firm spent nearly $6,700 in behalf of government employees to get and keep contracts for military uniforms. Levy, reading in broken English from a diary scrawled in Arabic, said he turned over that much in cash and checks to Marvin L. Rubin. He said he once saw Rubin, a specialist in landing federal contracts, pay $500 to an Army procurement official.

Highways: Administration senators decided to try to send a Democratic highway bill back to committee. By doing so they hoped the House, said to be more friendly to President Eisenhower's 101-billion-dollar roads program, would act on a measure before the Senate got around to the issue again.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. predicted the House next week will pass "something close" to the administration proposal.

Reserves: Martin said he thinks the House will pass President Eisenhower's military reserves bill. The House put the measure aside indefinitely last week and some quarters thought it was dead for this session. But Martin said he believes "we can make some arrangement" to bring the bill up again and pass it "in a week or two."

Social Security: House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) said he "enthusiastically favors" a bill to (1) lower from 65 to 60 or 62 the age at which women can draw Social Security benefits, and (2) allow totally and permanently disabled workers to draw monthly Social Security benefits without waiting until they are 65. The measure also drew support from two Republican members of the House Ways and Means committee, Reps. Antoni N. Sadlak (Conn.) and Robert W. Kean (N.J.).

Presbyterian Assembly Votes to Allow Women as Ministers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 167th general assembly of the American Presbyterian Church today will hear reports on foreign missions.

The assembly Monday voted to allow women to become ordained ministers of the Church. The decision, which was reached after heated debate, now must have the approval of some 2-1/2 million church members in presbyteries throughout the country.

The action came in the form of a constitutional amendment which would allow both men and women to be called to the office of the ministry as bishops, pastors and associate pastors.

Representatives at the assembly said that the action was a landmark in the history of the church.

Parents Living
Too High, PTA
Speaker Says

CHICAGO (AP)—The president of the National Education Assn. told American parents Monday night they must decide which is more important for their children—the teacher or the baby sitter.

Right now, she said, the baby sitter is paid at a higher rate.

Miss Waurine Walker, Austin, Tex., said in a speech at the convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers that "most of us are living pretty high off the hog."

"We are the only people in the world who are concerned with the question 'Where can I park?' and 'How can I reduce?'" she said.

"How can we pretend, in the midst of plenty, that it's all right to dump children into packed classrooms and cheat them of their educational birthright?"

Miss Walker said the schools face some serious problems that must be decided one way or the other.

"We can take it out on the human race, or we can take it out of our pockets," she said.

"If a teacher with 35 pupils in her class earned the lowest baby-sitting rate of 25 cents per child," she continued, "her annual pay would be around $10,237."

Return to Dining Table
"Yet the average salary of the teacher in this country is around $3,700 a year."

Responsibilities of schools and parents were discussed earlier by Mrs. Newton P. Leonard, Providence, R. I., president of the national PTA, and Mrs. Lillian Evans, Victoria, B. C., president of the Canadian PTA.

Mrs. Leonard cautioned against indoctrinating children with the thinking of the adult.

"Our thinking may be obsolete for the world in which they will live," she said. "They must learn, by guided practice, how to think so that they can discover for themselves what to think."

Mrs. Evans also called for a return to the family dining room and table.

"Eating today is largely off the snack bar, or the corner of the kitchen sink, a TV tray, or maybe a sandwich on the run," she said.

The family at the dining table develops natural conversation and each member learns to accept the opinions of others without getting upset about it, Mrs. Evans said.

Mrs. Freeman Molsinger to Retire After 23 Years Teaching at Carrier Mills

Mrs. Freeman (Essie) Molsinger, teacher in the Carrier Mills grade school system for 23 years, has announced plans to retire at the close of the present school term.

Mrs. Molsinger, a native of Omaha, taught one year in the Omaha grade school and with the close of the 1955 term, will have taught 23 years at Carrier Mills. She was out of teaching for 12 years, caring for her mother who was ill.

Most of her teaching has been first grade, but she has taught all other grades except the eighth. Mrs. Molsinger stated recently, "I have greatly enjoyed teaching, but plan to enjoy my years of retirement," Mrs. Molsinger declared. She and Mr. Molsinger, who is in the insurance business in Carrier Mills, plan to spend the winter months in Florida.

However, Mrs. Molsinger does not plan to get away entirely from teaching and has announced she will be available for supply teaching when needed.

Two of her former pupils, Raymond Rann and Mrs. Alice Holloway, are now members of the Carrier Mills grade school faculty.

Mrs. Molsinger attended grade school in Omaha, graduated from the Ridgway high school and completed her teaching requirements at SIU, Carbondale.

Wednesday of last week, during the annual honors day ceremony at Carrier Mills grade school, Mrs. Molsinger was honored with gifts from members of the faculty, pupils of her first grade room and the members of the PTA chapter.

Pupils of the school were honored during the ceremony for scholastic, music, athletic and attendance achievements.

Youth Leaps to Death to Prove Paratrooper Ability

NEW YORK (AP)—A 17-year-old boy leaped to his death from an 180-foot high bridge Monday to show three friends he would make a good paratrooper.

The youth, Carlos Olivar, was scheduled to join the 82nd Airborne Division today. He told friends "a trooper's first training jump was more than 200 feet." Then he set out to prove he could do it by leaping from the bridge spanning the Harlem River and plunging 180-feet to his death.

The three friends with him raced down to the water but found no trace of Olivar. They reported the tragedy to police who later recovered the boy's body.

Police quoted one youth as saying the group had been drinking to celebrate Olivar's enlistment.

They were taken back to Dixon late Saturday by Sheriff John Stouffer of Lee county.

Sheriff Holloway said that after lengthy questioning at Shawneetown by him and State's Attorney Charles Phillips, Miss Graves admitted to them that she stole part of the items taken to the Gallatin county courthouse but that Mrs. Vinyard, in whose home the articles were found, denied any part in the theft. State authorities identified some of the items as being stolen from the hospital, Holloway stated.

Holloway said that until an inventory which is now in progress is completed it will be impossible to determine the value of the articles, but added that it will run into the hundreds of dollars.

"It took a truck—a large one—to haul it to Shawneetown," he stated.

The sheriff said that he and Deputy Sheriff Jim Fox, acting on a tip, went to the Vinyard home at Omaha Thursday. Mrs. Vinyard was there at the time and when he told her the report he had come to investigate, he related, the woman told him there was absolutely no truth to it, to "go on in the house and look for yourself."

The two officers went into the house and found plenty, Holloway stated. It was trucked away.

The sheriff said he learned that Mrs. Vinyard, who was released from employment at the state hospital several months ago because of her age, telephoned her sister Thursday evening at the hospital, where the sister was still working and Miss Graves arrived at Omaha at 4 a. m. Friday.

The two then moved to East St. Louis to the home of a niece, he continued, and the niece took them back to Shawneetown, to the sheriff's office. He said they had come to inquire about the things that were taken and he put them under arrest on warrants issued against them in Lee county.

The items included both men's and women's clothing, pocketbooks, toasters, candy, corsets.

Midland, Eldorado Bank to Purchase Junior High Bonds

Midland Securities Co. and the First State Bank of Eldorado, represented by J. Cecil Sullivan, will purchase $87,500 in bonds to supplement insurance money in rebuilding the Harrisburg Junior High school old building, destroyed by fire January 1.

Four bids, representing six concerns, were submitted at a meeting of the District 43 board Monday evening. Bids had been received two weeks ago, but were resubmitted due to technical errors in previous bidding.

Mr. Sullivan's bid was for a net interest charge of $22,225 for the entire issue, calculated to cost the district an interest rate of 2.56 per cent. Other bids included a joint bid of Municipal Bond Corp. and Barcus, Kindred & Co., 2.73 per cent, G. H. Walker & Co., 2.74 per cent, and Steifel Nicholas, 2.77 per cent.

At the meeting Monday night, the school board made final recommendations to R. D. Brown, architect, on minor details relating to the rebuilding of the old structure, and Mr. Brown stated final plans would be complete in about ten days.

2 Omaha Sisters Face Charges of Hospital Thefts

Returned to Dixon
Authorities After
Shawneetown Arrest

Two sisters from Omaha who were arrested at Shawneetown are back in Dixon, Ill., where they face charges of stealing from the Dixon state hospital, where they had been employed.

The women are Effie L. Vinyard, 72, and Flora M. Graves, who were arrested by Millard Holloway, Gallatin county sheriff, after they went to his office Friday to ask about a truckload of items removed from the Vinyard home at Omaha the day before.

They were taken back to Dixon late Saturday by Sheriff John Stouffer of Lee county.

Sheriff Holloway said that after lengthy questioning at Shawneetown by him and State's Attorney Charles Phillips, Miss Graves admitted to them that she stole part of the items taken to the Gallatin county courthouse but that Mrs. Vinyard, in whose home the articles were found, denied any part in the theft. "Getting Crowded Around Here, Isn't It, Chum?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Air Force was set to warn public on Russian growing air power; warning was scrapped at behest of White House; Air Force generals reverse themselves before senators.

WASHINGTON. — Here is the amazing inside story of the Air Force mix-up over whether we are ahead of Russia or Russia is ahead of us in air power.

Called before a closed-door Senate committee meeting, General Nathan Twining, chief of staff for air, and General Woodbury Burgess, chief of air force intelligence, both denied that Russia is ahead of the United States.

However, here is what happened before they walked in to face the senators.

Earlier, General Twining had prepared a speech to be delivered in Los Angeles on Armed Forces Day, May 21, giving a solemn warning that Russia had made terrific progress and might be forging ahead of the United States in air power.

On the same day, Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott also planned to deliver a "block-buster" speech warning the American people that we were falling behind Russia.

However, he was called off by President Eisenhower and Secretary of Defense Wilson. Both had recently denied that the United States was falling behind Russia, and Talbott was told that a speech by him to the contrary would not be politic.

"We don't want to alarm the public," was the advice he got from the two top men responsible for the nation's defense.

SPEECHES ARE SCRAPPED

Talbott meanwhile had heard of Twining's proposed speech at Los Angeles and called the air force chief in. He did not order Twining to change his speech. But he did say he'd got word from Secretary Wilson not to alarm the public, and that, accordingly, he, Talbott, had rewritten his speech. He also pointed out that he and Twining would be in the embarrassing position of giving opposite speeches on the same day unless Twining also rewrote his speech.

It was further recalled that Senator Symington, the Missouri Democrat and secretary for air in the Truman administration, had publicly charged that the United States was falling behind Russia. For General Twining to side with Symington, therefore, would be highly embarrassing to the Eisenhower administration.

So General Twining tore up his Los Angeles speech and wrote a new one.

While this was going on in Washington, General Burgess, intelligence chief of the Continental Air Defense command, made his now famous speech in Detroit stating in effect that Russian air might be ahead of the U.S.A.

JEFS OVER MOSCOW

Burgess and Symington, together with Twining and Talbott, had based their worry on the jet bombers U. S. observers had seen in Russia. This column first reported on April 26 that "the power pendulum is swinging over toward Soviet Russia as far as air strength is concerned. . . . This May Day the Russians will have 15 giant type-37 jets. In contrast we had two B-52 jet bombers of the same size a year ago. Today we have only three. In other words, the Russians are outproducing us 14 to one!"

Ten days later this was confirmed by a Defense Department spokesman. On May 18, however, Eisenhower said just the opposite.

"It is just not true," he told a press conference, that we "have lost in a twinkling" all our great technical advantages.

General Burgess, however, is an intelligence officer who knew what the intelligence reports were from Moscow. He also knew that the Russian pilots had flown their new jets right over the American embassy thirteen times, virtually thumbing their noses at the American ambassador. So he gave an unvarnished speech before the American Legion in Detroit.

Actually his facts were correct and his conclusions were correct. But he got an immediate call from General Twining in Washington.

"If you'd said it two weeks ago, or if you'd said it two weeks later, it might have been all right," the air force chief said. "But coming at this time, you've got us into trouble."

WHAT DID BURGESS SAY?

General Burgess then went with General Twining and Secretary Talbott to face the Senate Armed Services committee where in secret session he claimed the Associated Press had misquoted him. This column is able to reveal what he told the senators he had said in Detroit.

"The Russians are not 12 feet tall with an A-bomb in both hands," General Burgess said he said. "They are also not three feet tall. Actually they're 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 175 pounds. We should neither over-estimate nor under-estimate them. They're just as smart as we are and maybe smarter."

Those present at the Detroit meeting claim Burgess further stated:

"They have an air force just as good as ours or maybe better."

Back at the Pentagon after facing the senators, General Burgess was called in to see Secretary of Defense Wilson. He expected to be bawled out. Instead Wilson was mild and cordial.

"Welcome," he said, "to the foot-in-mouth club."

And he took the general over to a corner of his office to inspect a collection of cartoons lampooning Wilson for his bird-dogs and kennel-dogs statement and various other malaprops.

ANTHONY EDEN'S JITTERS

Diplomatic cables report that Prime Minister Anthony Eden is suffering from a bad case of pre-election jitters even though all polls show his Conservative party out in front.

Eden called a special meeting of his brain trust last week to warn that the Labor party would launch a last minute whispering campaign involving the hydrogen bomb in a desperate maneuver to catch up. Eden said word is to be passed around that a Conservative victory will mean a hydrogen bomb war in two years which will wipe Britain off the map.

Despite these last minute jitters, I still predict Eden's Conservatives will win the election on Thursday and increase their margin in Parliament.

Screaming Woman Pleads for Rescue In Note Hurlled from Automobile

DANVILLE, Ill. — Road blocks were set up and a statewide alert was issued today for a car carrying a screaming woman who threw out a note pleading for rescue.

The note, found in the nearby village of Central Park, said "help, help—I'm in a car with a crazy man headed for Chicago."

The note apparently was thrown out moments after a Central Park resident, Mrs. Frank Gillespie, heard a woman screaming "Help! Help!" outside her home late Monday night.

Mrs. Gillespie heard a car door slam and looked out in time to see a red automobile with Indiana license plates speed away.

Investigating deputies found the note in front of Mrs. Gillespie's home. It was written on a scrap torn from an Evansville, Ind., newspaper and was attached to a hat such as would be worn by an elderly woman.

Harry Ludwig, in charge of the Vermillion County sheriff's office here, said the case appeared to be a kidnap.

Mrs. Gillespie is a reputable woman," he said. "We have no reason to believe this might be a prank."

An alert was issued to all surrounding counties in hopes of stopping the car before it reached Chicago. Another alert was issued to Indiana authorities.

Meanwhile, deputies and state police manned road blocks in Vermillion and Iroquois counties.

But no sign of the mysterious car had been reported up to six hours after Mrs. Gillespie heard the woman's screams.

At Evansville, police said they had no reports of a missing elderly woman during the last 24 hours.

Mrs. Gillespie said the screams sounded like those of an elderly woman. Ludwig added that the handwriting on the note appeared to be that of a woman advanced in years.

The Central Park woman also told deputies that she believed she saw the initials "EL" on the car's license plates, indicating it came from Evansville.

Mrs. Chapman Lauds Activities Of Women's Clubs

PHILADELPHIA — An interim report on the president highlighted the opening business session today of the international convention and 64th annual meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman told the 1,200 delegates from the United States and 33 foreign nations that "tremendous strides" had been made in strengthening the program of the federation on every level and in stimulating community participation.

She said club members throughout the United States had "accepted" the challenge of ridding "every newsstand of horror, crime and sex comic books." She added that the work was being done but cautioned that it must be continued.

"As vigilance is the price of freedom," she said, "so it is the price of decency."

Mrs. Chapman also lauded the efforts of club women on their participation in national issues.

Mrs. Chapman, pointing out that club members were given daily first hand reports of deliberations within the United Nations, called on the women to "celebrate in some appropriate manner the 10th anniversary of the United Nations . . . and . . . to be the channel through which authentic information and better understanding reach people everywhere," she said.

On a recent test of speed on British railways, half a mile was covered in 16 seconds flat and several miles approaching London were covered at the rate of 114 miles an hour.

Storms Hit As Cool Air Breaks May Heat Wave

By United Press

A muggy heat wave, sparked by savage electrical storms and street flooding rains, stretched across the nation's eastern half today.

Downpours and ripping winds hit from Wisconsin to southern Louisiana as an advancing cool front battled with a vast blanket of hot, moist air.

The storms hit hardest at eastern Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi. Communications were washed out, city streets were flooded, and tornado winds tore down buildings.

Lightning Kills Boy

The heat crackled with more storms farther east and, at Tampa, Fla., 9-year-old Syd McDuffie was killed by a lightning bolt as he played in his back yard during a thunderstorm. His 7-year-old sister standing only a few feet away was unhurt.

The May heat wave sent the temperature to 81 last Monday at Caribou, on the northern tip of Maine where some of the nation's coldest readings are often registered. It was a blistering 104 at Laredo, Tex.

The humidity made the heat far worse. New York City sweltered in 91 per cent humidity, with little promise of relief, and the humidity was 75 per cent early today in Chicago.

In the heart of the storm belt, Greenwood, Miss., was swamped by 4.7 inches of rain and Shreveport, La., had 4.65.

Streets Washed Out

Streets were washed out in Tyler, Tex., Vicksburg, Miss., and Shreveport, La., where rising waters forced some residents from their homes. Debris blocked four Greenwood streets and communications were cut for a time between Logansport, Miss., and eastern Texas.

At least one tornado corkscrewed out of the thunderheads, ripping across a farm and wooded section near Arcadia, La. One person was injured, four tenant houses were destroyed, and timber was leveled.

In Kansas, two and a quarter inches of hail fell as a tornado funnel menaced Wichita, and Butler, Mo., got 2.62 inches of rain.

Two American Mountain Climbers Are Found Dead

FORT WILLIAM, Scotland — Two young American mountain climbers were found dead today in a deep gully of Britain's tallest peak.

Royal Air Force rescue crews found the mountaineers roped together on the north buttress of 4,406-foot Ben Nevis, a rugged peak whose slopes plunge sharply into disguised crevasses.

The crews had set out at dawn today when it was feared the Americans were lost in a blizzard on the mountain. They had not been seen since Sunday morning when they began the treacherous ascent.

The dead men were Frederic C. Hadden of Pasadena, Calif., and Bert Woodburn of San Gabriel, Calif., both 21-year-old students at the University of Edinburgh.

Authorities said the climbers had previous experience and took plenty of equipment and first-aid kits when they set out on the four-hour northern ascent Sunday morning.

Gov't Vaccine Testing Program Under Attack

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele said today the Public Health Service is "coming close to the time when we will have some answers" about the stalled polio vaccination program.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Jonas E. Salk joined today in polio vaccine conferences that were beset by major disputes. At stake was a government plan for drastically increasing safety standards of Salk shots.

A backstage fight over the proposed vaccine manufacturing standards, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said, apparently, Salk lined up against the U. S. Public Health Service.

Some vaccine producers described the government plan as "fantastic" and "impractical." They said it involves a vast testing and re-testing program which would stagger the facilities of the drug firms and virtually stop the nation's inoculation program.

Scheele will decide. The foundation took the position that vaccine manufactured by firms other than the Cutter Laboratories has been proved even safer than the vaccine used in last year's mass tests.

Today's conference, called by the Public Health Service, may hold the key to the future of the bogged down vaccination program.

Confusion over the vaccine program and uncertainty over what to do next prompted authorities in Milwaukee, Wis., Brockton, Mass., and Alameda, Calif., to halt inoculations indefinitely. In New York City, where first round shots were started last week, officials said only about two-thirds of the eligible children showed up for inoculations Monday.

Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, U. S. surgeon general, told newsmen he was not sure whether he would have a statement at the end of today's session. Scheele is the man who has to make the final decisions.

Salk, developer of the vaccine, was asked on his arrival at the meeting why he had not been present Monday when top polio experts and vaccine manufacturers held a marathon session.

He replied tersely: "Scheele knows." Then he added that "it was not for the reason given." The Public Health Service had said he could not attend Monday because of an engagement in the Middle West.

National foundation officials, including President Basil O'Connor, were called into the meeting along with representatives of the American Medical Assn. and the Association of State and Territorial Health Officers.

The foundation, as well as most of the vaccine manufacturers, is opposed to the sweeping testing and retesting program proposed by the Public Health Service.

O'Connor said Monday night the difficulties experienced with vaccine made by Cutter Laboratories in California cannot be used as a basis for increasing the testing requirements until it is known whether there was something wrong with Cutter's tests.

Stratton Signs 11 Measures

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton Monday signed into law a bill to raise from $15 to $50 the amount of money an aged person may earn and still receive old age assistance.

However, the bill hinges on federal approval since the program is supported by matching federal and state funds.

The governor signed 10 other bills, including measures to: Require cheese sold in Illinois to bear the name and address or an identifying number of the factory where it was manufactured and authorize the State Department of Agriculture to assign numbers to all Illinois cheese manufacturers.

Permit poll watchers in primary elections to serve in any precinct or ward in the county in which they reside.

Require township central committee chairmen to certify the names of all candidates nominated at a caucus at least 35 days before the next township election.

Require that debtors be given an immediate hearing before the court which issues a debt order and limits imprisonment for debt to six months.

Couple Missing Six Years Found With Four Sons

ALEXANDRIA, Ind. (AP) — The mystery of a disappearing high school couple was at an end today. They were found living under an assumed name and caring for their four sons.

The two youngsters disappeared six years ago. They were found after the girl, Mary Jane Reed, sent a birthday greeting to her brother with a Nashville, Tenn., return address.

She and William Lewis had left their homes in March, 1949, "on the spur of the moment," she said. Both were 16 at the time. They married and set up housekeeping in Nashville as "Mr. and Mrs. William Clark."

Their families had searched unsuccessfully for them until the birthday greeting led to their whereabouts.

Lewis, a member of the Nashville fire department, said he had seen several former Alexandria residents in Nashville, but none had recognized him.

Jilted Lover Kills Divorcee, Suicides In Locked Auto

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Police tried unsuccessfully to break into a locked car and prevent the suicide of a jilted lover moments after he had killed his young divorcee sweetheart with six shots.

Luis Camacho, 26, and Mrs. Dora Justiniano, 22, had been living here in an apartment with Mrs. Francisco Negron, aunt of Mrs. Justiniano. They came here recently from Salinas, Puerto Rico.

Police said Mrs. Justiniano had gone to the mail box at the front of the building Monday and Camacho shot her with a German Lugger pistol. He killed her instantly.

A bystander called police as Camacho ran to his car parked nearby and locked himself in.

As police arrived, Camacho fired one wild shot through the windshield. Another shot wounded him in the chest. He fired a third time and died with two bullets in his heart after police had battered open the car door.

Police said Mrs. Justiniano recently had rejected Camacho's attentions.

A native of Shelby county, Illinois, he received his bachelor's degree at Southern Illinois university

Russia Warns Against Moving Troops to Italy

LONDON (AP) — Radio Moscow warned Italy and the United States today that the transfer of U. S. occupation forces from Austria to northern Italy might have grave military consequences.

"According to press reports," the broadcast said, "the U. S. A. intends, in withdrawing its troops from Austria, to transfer them to Italy and to establish a bridgehead in northern Italy."

"There can be no doubt that such a measure would increase the danger of Italy's involvement in military adventures fraught with grave consequences."

The broadcast was of a Tass news agency commentary in the official Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda headed "The Foreign Policy of Italy and Her National Interests."

Pravda also complained that recent Italo-Soviet relations "cannot be characterized as satisfactory." This was believed a reference to Italy's opposition to the Moscow scheme of turning Austria, Germany, Italy and Yugoslavia into neutrals.

Government quarters and the Communist opposition in Rome took it for granted the American troops would enter north Italy from Austria; the Communists threatened riotous demonstrations in protest.

Pro-government newspapers in Rome splashed inspired stories saying "The Yanks are coming." The Communists screamed "invasion" and demanded a parliamentary investigation.

Moscow Radio's blunt warning to Italy was expected to touch wilder demonstrations by the Communists in Italy who have one of the largest memberships outside Soviet Russia itself.

The "neutrality" of Austria and the withdrawal of some 10,000 Allied troops would expose up to 300 miles of Italy's northern border to attack. It was presumed in Rome the Americans would be stationed in the north near the Brenner Pass and Ljubljana gap, the historic invasion routes.

Shortest and Deepest

The shortest and deepest river in America is Lost River, near Bowling Green, Ky. Only 700 feet in length, it is more than half as deep as it is long.

In 1940 and his master's degree from the University of Nebraska in 1941.

He taught at HTHS in 1941-42, then was in the Army Air Corps from 1942-46 during World War II, returning to Harrisburg to teach the 1946-47 term. He and Mrs. Holmes then went to California.

Mrs. Holmes is the daughter of the late Roy Holmes. Her mother is now with her son-in-law and daughter in California.

A baby daughter was born April 25 to Mr. and Mrs. Cordray. It is their first child.

Americans Must Be Informed, Eisenhower Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today said that an informed public at home and abroad is the "way to win the war for peace."

He told the 33rd annual convention of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters that it has "never been as important as it is today that the American public be informed."

He said Americans must know about everything from a proposed four power conference to the Indochina crisis.

He said information media from this country should also help people abroad understand America.

The President said if he had to choose between free communication and some kind of world government to enforce peace, he would "unhesitatingly choose free communication."

He said everyone in the radio and television field should think of himself as a "crusader" to help spread understanding of what goes on in the world.

Broadcaster and newspaper publisher Mark Ethridge spoke just before Mr. Eisenhower. He said Congress should make an "agonizing reappraisal" of government policies toward television—a "voracious monster which consumes Shakespeare, talent and money at a fearful rate."

Carmi Station Counts Donations To Aid Youth

CARMI, Ill. (AP) — The staff of a Carmi radio station today counted donations raised by a special radio program to aid a paralyzed youth.

More than $1,600 had been collected within two hours after the end of the special program over Station WROY Monday night. The money will be used for further treatment and rehabilitation care for 18-year-old Denzil Hill of Carmi. The high school senior was paralyzed after an accident in a high school gym class.

Members of the station staff and the high school faculty fulfilled requests phoned in by listeners with pledges of donations to the Denzil Hill Radio Fund.

The latest report from the New Jersey institute where Hill is receiving treatment is that he now can push himself in a wheelchair part of the time. The radio station made a tape recording of the special program and will send it to Hill.

American Pilot Killed in Korea

Miss June Susan Polley, Edward Ross Kimmel Married Saturday at Cleveland

Mrs. Edward Ross Kimmel

Announcement was made today of the wedding Saturday, May 21, at Cleveland, Ohio, of Miss June Susan Polley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Polley, 3644 East 110th street, Cleveland, and Edward Ross Kimmel, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kimmel, 110 West Lincoln street, Harrisburg.

They were married at Schaeffer Memorial Methodist church, Cleveland, with the double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. C. W. Clark, at 5 p. m. Nuptial music included the two wedding marches and solos, "O Promise Me," "Because," and as a benediction, "The Lord's Prayer," sung by Miss Dora Lewis, Cleveland.

Altar decoration was entirely of greenery, making a beautiful setting for the bridal party.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of tulle and lace with full hoop skirt, cap sleeves and long lace-mits. Her finger-tip veil was fastened to a crown of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli and lilies of the valley.

Attending her at the altar were Mrs. William Woodyard, a sister, who was maid of honor, and two bridesmaids, Miss Frances Kimmel, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jean Boeschlin, Cincinnati. They wore matching dresses of pale pink, which were full-skirted, with off-the-shoulder neckline and three-fourth length sleeves. They carried purple iris and wore shoes to match the flowers.

Groomsmen were H. A. Davis, Shelbyville, Ill., who served as best man, and the ushers: Nolan B. Augenbaugh, Akron, Ohio, Stewart S. Lough, Detroit, Mich., and William A. Woodyard, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Polley, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Kimmel wore dresses in toast and coffee shades, and each wore an orchid corsage.

The bridegroom is a law student at Ohio State university, Columbus, after serving until about a month ago in the armed forces in the Pacific.

The bride has a bachelor of science degree from Purdue university.

The wedding rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents on Friday evening at Stouffard's in Cleveland.

After a wedding trip to the East coast the couple will take up their residence in Columbus on June 15. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Kimmel returned to this city Sunday from Cleveland.

Texas Eastern lends a hand to fashion

TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Natural gas is used in making "Jewels by Trifari" because the artisans can change the size and temperature of the gas flame with just a flick of the finger! This plant is supplied natural gas by the Providence Gas Company through Algonquin Gas Transmission Company, customer of Texas Eastern.

Texas Eastern transports natural gas from the Southwest to serve as an important tool to the jewelry manufacturing centers of New England. Modern costume jewelry is a work of art—original in design, intricately worked, beautiful to wear. Its modest price would be impossible without modern production techniques which so often are dependent upon natural gas as a fuel. Natural gas is widely used in industrial processes because it is clean, efficient and economical.

Knocking her down and dragging her around their home by her hair.
Tearing great fistfuls of hair off her head, leaving embarrassingly large bald patches.

MacPhail Blames Clubs for Night Game Excesses

BELAIR, Md. (U.P.)—Larry MacPhail agreed today he may have created a Frankenstein monster exactly 20 years ago today when he introduced night baseball to the majors at Cincinnati on May 24, 1935.

Major league club owners have gone way beyond sensible limits for night ball and they have all but killed off day baseball except for Sundays and holidays," said the red-haired former baseball executive who put in lights at Cincinnati, Brooklyn, and New York's Yankee Stadium.

MacPhail, now a county squire who owns a string of thoroughbred race horses and a herd of purebred Aberdeen-Angus cattle at his Glen Angus farms near here, has no regrets about being out of baseball.

MacPhail emphasizes that if baseball has its problems today because of too many games at night—"I'm not to blame for it."

"When the National league voted to give me permission to play night games at Cincinnati in 1935, I told them that no club should ever schedule more than seven games a season after dark. I also gave the league an 'out'—I said I would stop it after one year if there were any major objections."

MacPhail said he recalled the reaction of the late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was commissioner of baseball at that time.

"As we were going to the meeting of the club owners he said to me 'they may play baseball at night some day but it will be long after you and I are dead.' Well, they voted it in the same day."

MacPhail, who quit baseball after building the post-war Yankees into a championship dynasty on the day they won the World Series from Brooklyn in 1947, blames Clark Griffith of Washington and Branch Rickey of Pittsburgh for many of the excesses connected with night baseball.

Carterville Policeman is Freed on Bond

MARION, Ill. (U.P.)—Albert Priddy, veteran Carterville police officer accused of killing a paroled convict, was free on $20,000 bond today.

Priddy, 63, posted bond Monday night and was released from Williamson county jail here.

Priddy, who has been a Carterville police officer 25 years, is charged with killing Edmond Smith, 39, of Carterville last Saturday. He pleaded innocent and waived preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace Monday.

A shotgun charge fired through a window killed Smith Saturday morning as he slept in the living room of the home of Earl McGowan in Carterville. Smith was paroled last fall after serving 1 year of a 1-to-14 year prison term for manslaughter in the killing of Isaac Gladden two years ago.

Scheffing Named Manager of Los Angeles Angels

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Veteran major leaguer Bob Scheffing, whose only managerial experience was garnered in the deep minors when he was "tickled to death at the opportunity" of managing the Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League.

Scheffing, a 39-year-old former catcher who spent 9 of his 10 years in the majors with the Chicago Cubs, was named manager of the Cub farm club Monday night. Scheffing, a Cub coach for the last two seasons, succeeds Bill Sweeney, who was forced to retire because of illness.

Scheffing will take over the reins of the third-place Angels Wednesday night.

Pie Traynor Recalls Ruth's Farewell to Baseball with 3 Homers Against Pirates

By RUDY CERNKOVIC

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—Twenty years Wednesday ... Ted Kluszewski and Gil Hodges were 11-year-old baseball hopefuls, Willie Mays was all of 4 and Babe Ruth said farewell to his playing career.

The Babe sang his swan song in the best fashion — by belting three home runs against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field. His last clout cleared the right field stands, marking the first time such a feat had been accomplished at Forbes Field.

Ruth actually did not quit the team until eight days later. But it was his last big day in the majors and another 15 years were to pass before ex-Pirate Ted Beard duplicated Ruth's wallop. It hasn't been done since.

The Big Wallops

Pie Traynor, now a Pittsburgh radio broadcaster who was manager of the Pirates at the time, recalled that game.

"One of the local sportswriters approached me that day and told me not to worry about the Babe. He said he and the Babe did the town until 5 in the morning."

"Then I figured that the Babe had had it. He was past 40 and a few weeks before he had told me in Boston that his legs weren't holding out."

Ruth came to town with the Boston Braves piloted by Bill McKeechne. He said he was tired that day and that his eyes had been troubling him.

But the Babe "refreshed" himself in the first inning when his "sore" eyes spotted a Red Lucas pitch in the first inning and he sent a homer into the lower right-field stands.

In Ruth's next trip to the plate he faced reliever Guy Bush in the third inning. Ruth worked a 3-2 count and then propelled a fast ball into the upper deck of the right field stands for a two-run homer.

"That wallop amazed me," Traynor said. "I didn't think that would be surpassed for a long time. But I was wrong. I only had to wait until the seventh inning."

Wallops to Clubhouse
Ruth had a "letdown" feeling in his fifth inning appearance at the plate. He nicked Bush for a one-run single.

Giants Purchase Sid Gordon For Pinch-Hitting

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.)—Sid Gordon was slated today to assume an important role of pinch-hitter and general utility man which the New York Giants hope will aid them in their efforts to overtake the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The 36-year-old right handed slugger was purchased from the Pittsburgh Pirates Monday night "for an amount well above the $10,000 waiver price." He is due to join the Giants before tonight's game with the Philadelphia Phillies.
Gordon was hitting only .170 for the Pirates but is recognized as a dangerous long-ball threat. He is capable of playing third base or the outfield well and probably could catch in an emergency. He had a lifetime batting average of .286 and had hit 195 home runs before the season started.

The Phillies, meanwhile, purchased pitcher Bob Kuzava from the Baltimore Orioles and returned pitcher Lynn Lovenguth to Syracuse in the International League. Kuzava had an 0-1 record for the Orioles but Philadelphia General Manager Roy Hamer said "He should be able to help us—I know there is nothing wrong with his arm."

Need More Teams, Supervisor for Kiwanis Baseball

Only two teams have entered the Kiwanis summer baseball leagues so far, Ronnie Doerge, chairman of the program for the Kiwanis club, announced today. Deadline for applications by teams is May 25 for league play to begin June 6. Unless enough teams enter the leagues there will be no summer program.

Another supervisor will be needed in the league, Doerge announced, as Virgil Cline, one of the two supervisors named earlier, has accepted out-of-town work and will be unable to help in the summer play. Harold Guiley will be one of the two supervisors needed.

Teams should use the blank in today's Register in entering the players and turn the application in to Doerge at Ronnie's Studio.

Average life of a rabbit in the game area is two to three years.

The bases were empty when Ruth came up in the seventh. He worked Bush for a 3-1 count. Then came the next ball, slow as a lazy balloon.

Ruth lunged and connected to send the ball over the right field stands.

When the Pirates took their turn at bat in the seventh, Ruth picked up his glove and instead of going to his outfield position, he trotted towards the clubhouse.

McKeechne said afterwards that he was surprised by Ruth's "walk" to the clubhouse.

"I didn't ask him to leave the game," McKeechne said.

Actually Ruth quit the team a few days later in Cincinnati but his third homer in Pittsburgh was his "farewell."

The last four-bagger in Ruth's fabulous career tied the score at 7-7 but the Pirates won the game 11-7. And ironically, the winning pitcher was Waite Hoyt who had been a teammate of Ruth when the Bambino was re-writing the record books with the Yankees.

Returns from Soil Research Training Course

Albert Seyer

Albert Seyer, of the Soil Conservation Service, returned home Saturday from the Regional Training Center for professional employees at Coshocton, Ohio.

Seyer was one of 17 men from eight states and Sweden, who completed an intensive four-week training course in soils, engineering designs, farm planning, and other conservation problems. He has been assisting in the Saline County Soil Conservation District since last June, under the supervision of Thomas W. Morgan, work unit conservationist.

Seyer reported that research carried on at the Coshocton station is of prime importance in solving the many problems involved in conserving our soil and water resources.

In the Muskingum watershed area and surrounding counties, a large portion of the farmers are using conservation practices such as contouring, strip cropping, terracing, drainage, farm ponds and improved pastures, plus increased fertility and proper land use. These practices have resulted in better yields and higher net incomes for the farmers in the watershed area and is also protecting the area below the watershed from damaging floods which once plagued southeastern Ohio.

Eisenhower Discusses GOP Aims at Fund-Raising Dinner by Women's Group

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower said Monday night that the Republican Party is "not trying to go back to the horse cars... nor trying to fly to Mars."

He said the party believes "that America is advancing to many expanding areas of prosperity, a prosperity widely shared among our citizens."

He said statistics show the GOP is a minority party, but its actions are designed to promote the welfare of the majority.

Mr. Eisenhower discussed the

U. S. Bolsters Relations With Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON — The United States appeared today to be taking special pains to bolster U. S. Yugoslavia relations on the eve of a visit of top Soviet officials to Belgrade.

The move is designed to strengthen Marshal Tito's hand when he meets later this month with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita S. Khrushchev, boss of the Russian Communist Party. The United States doesn't want Yugoslavia falling for Soviet wooing.

The Yugoslavs already have assured the United States they will not swerve from their past policy of independence despite the dramatic decision of the Soviet leaders to end their dispute with Tito.

Tug-Of-War
Yugoslavia, an anti-Soviet Communist nation has followed an independent line since 1948 when it broke with Moscow. But the Russians and the West recently have engaged in a tug-of-war over the Balkan prize.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Monday summoned Yugoslav Ambassador Leo Matos to the State Department for a half-hour conference. Afterward, the department issued a special announcement about the meeting.

A spokesman agreed this was an "unusual procedure" but declined to go into the reasons for it.

The announcement said Dulles and Matos discussed recent developments in Europe, "including the forthcoming visit of the heads of the Soviet Union."

aims of the party and of his administration in an off-the-cuff speech at a fund-raising "Republican Kickoff" for 1956, dinner sponsored by the local GOP Women's Finance Committee.

He said his administration is not operating for the "glorification of the Republican Party, but for the benefit" of all Americans.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and five other administration officials took part in a special panel discussion at the dinner on the accomplishments of the Eisenhower administration. The discussion was transcribed for broadcast later by CBS television and ABC radio.

In his speech, the President pointed to Nixon as one of dozens of young men who "can bring inspiration" to the GOP.

Nixon's panel said the administration has obtained more defense at less cost, cleaned Communists out of government and contributed to record levels of business and employment.

Appearing with the vice president were Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson, Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell, Undersecretary of Commerce Walter Williams and Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers.

Boy, 9, Kills Himself Over Father's Arrest

BANNING, Calif. — A 9-year-old boy, apparently distraught over the arrest of his father on a burglary charge, killed himself Monday night with a 12-gauge shotgun triggered by a piece of string.

Police said Roger Deason Jr. took his life in the bedroom of his home here while his mother was away. Mrs. Deason found her son lying near the bed when she returned. He was shot in the head.

A note found near the body indicated the boy's despondency over the arrest of his father, police said. Deason, 27, was arrested last month for burglary of a West Riverside, Calif., market. He is in jail awaiting sentence May 27.

The Riverside County coroner's office said it was preparing a report on the suicide and would arrange for the father to be released from jail to attend his son's funeral.

TOP GALATIA STUDENTS—Phyllis Odle was named Valedictorian and Glenn Clarida, Salutatorian, of the Galatia high school Class of 1955, Principal Raymond Gardner announced this morning. The two had maintained such a close race for the honors that the final outcome was still undetermined last Friday—Honor Day. Both will be recognized during the Commencement exercises Friday evening, May 27. The program will be held in the high school gymnasium and will commence at 7:30. State Senator Glen O. Jones will deliver the address. Miss Odle's scholastic average for the four years was 97.98. Clarida's was 97.24.

DEATH OF A LEGEND

XXIII

All was quiet along the Mopac's right-of-way at Rocky Cut on the Lamine River, 13 miles beyond the section stop of Sedalia, Mo.

Just past the rickety trestle which bore the tracks across the Lamine, the green, all-clear lamp outside the watchman's shack winked cheerily through the July night. By its thin light the watchman chewed at his gag, cursed the luck which had stationed him at a lonely waypoint in the Jesse James country. Forty yards farther up the track, in the throat of the cut, eight good men and true dropped the last of the piled crossties athwart the rails, laughing, spat into the trackside shadows, wondered what was holding up old No. 9.

Jesse checked his watch in the day-bright glare of the summer moon. Train Nine was running 27 minutes late. It was no matter. When Jesse bribed a railroad employe, he stayed bribed. On time or otherwise, No. 9 would be there.

"I told you she was due to lay over at Sedalia to pick up our express car. There's two companies shipping tonight, Adams and United. It figures to take them some time to hook up and get their invoices cleared. Our car will be up front, hooked back of the baggage car."

"What if she ain't?" Cole had shadowed up to them.

"If she ain't," grated Jesse ominously, "there's due to be a new-made widow hanging around them St. Louie yards before the week's out."

Pete Conklin grabbed the arms of his chair, bracing himself as No. 9 bit into the trestle curve.

If only Johnny Bushnell would get back in the express car where he belonged, they could get on with their chess game. Bushnell was the express guard.

Suddenly, No. 9 locked her drivers, threw on the steam and sand. Her whistle hooted bawlingly and Pete Conklin started picking himself out of the pile of express packages where his tilted-back chair had thrown him. He was still on his knees when the three masked men swung their horses up to the open loading door, piled off of them, swarmed into the car.

Two of them were big and tall, and a man could see the crinkle of their wide grins beyond the muffle of their calico bandannas. The third man was about Pete's own size, which was to say only medium tall and not to be hefty, and a man could look all night and not see any grin lines past his bandanna.

"Hand over the key to the safe, young feller," he rasped.

"I ain't got it!" protested Pete. "I ain't the messenger. I'm on baggage this run."

"All right mister, where's the messenger?"

"Back in the train, gabbing with the conductor."

The slender man looked at him a moment. "All right," he nodded again, "let's mosey back and find him."

"Hold on, Dingus." The bigger of his two companions put out his hand. "How about the conductor?"

"If he knows me," gritted Jesse, "it won't be for long."

He was back shortly. Bushnell and Conklin both with him. Cole looked at him.

"How about the conductor?" he asked sharply.

"Never saw him before in my life," grinned Jesse.

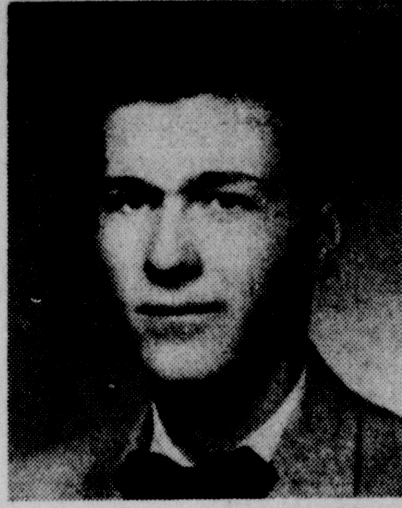

Bushnell opened the first safe. Cole emptied it in short order. He hefted the sack speculatively, grinned at Jesse. Old outlaw weightmaster that he was, he reckoned it a fair beginning. A man might be a thousand or two off, one way or the other, but there felt to be in the neighborhood of $40,000 already in the bag, with the second safe left to go.

But the second safe did not go. It was locked all the way through, said Johnny Bushnell.

Bob got the fireman's coal pick swinging optimistically in his hands. Cole let him knock a few futile sparks off the steel box, then shouldered him aside.

Under Cole's tremendous blows, a small hole was literally driven through the safe's top, but the big outlaw's huge paw would not begin to go through it. Jesse took off his coat, rolled up his right sleeve, tapped Cole on the shoulder.

"Never put a plough-horse to a pony's job," he grinned, and slid his small hand and wrist through the jagged opening. Stuck by stack, he fished out the neatly bundled currency, toiling in strained silence as the precious minutes fled.

Cole shouldered the sack and moved for the door.

"Where you think you're going?" snarled Jesse. Cole glanced around, saw the quick blink of the pale eyes.

"Aw shucks now, Jess." The grin spread. "I won't be a minute. I'm going to hunt me up a plug hat back yonder."

The Rocky Cut robbery was on record—as of 10:43 P. M., July 7, 1876. No official accounting of the loot has survived. Express companies are touchy with statistics of this sort.

Years later, on a fine summer's afternoon in St. Joseph, Mo., one of the parties of the second part tugged at his graying handlebars, squinted his pale blue eyes back down the long, long trail, and balanced history's books with a soft Clay County drawl.

"Eighty-eight thousand dollars," said Frank James.
